

Visual culture as new educational socio-technological paradigm
Lana Skender

Highlights

- Today's culture is predominantly visual because digital media constitute reality
- Developing critical competence is very important for visual literacy
- Visual culture relates to students' daily experiences due to growing up in the digital world
- Visual culture has a significant influence on identity formation
- Examples of visual culture should be incorporated into teaching about art.